Crime Occurred Along Railroad Between New Castle
And West Pittsburg

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti today laid the legal groundwork to return to Pennsylvania a suspect held at far away Kirkland Lake, Ontario, Canada, as the alleged slayer of a New Castle, Pa., man in a "vendetta" 30 years ago.

The suspect, Rocco Esposito, arrested there on charges made by Frank Costa, an agent of the State Department of Justice who has been investigating the case since last February, was to be arraigned today before a local magistrate. This was the first step towards returning him to this country to face court action as the alleged slayer of Francesco Romeo.

Has Family

Margiotti said Esposito, who in the past 30 years has become a father of four children and apparently led an exemplary life, killed Romeo in revenge because Romeo was a member of the Italian police and killed Esposito's cousin. Before he died, Esposito told Margiotti, Romeo suspected the name of his slayer to police who found him riddled with bullets along a railroad track between New Castle and West Pittsburg, a suburb. Since then, Esposi-to had never been seen in New Castle.

"Thirty years ago," Margiotti said,
Esposito was indicted jointly with

MADRID, Jan. 2.—Tremendous slaughter in the "battle of the olive groves" when German troops fighting with the rebels clashed with the "international brigade" today, left bodies of Frenchmen, Russians and Czechoslovaks among the gnarled trees.

After the battle, part of a wide rebel offensive to cut off Madrid from Valencia, the insurgents claimed capture of the town of Porcuna, east of Cordoba.

Partial Motor Industry Tieup Threatens To Spread

(International News Service)
DETROIT, Jan. 2.—Partial paralysis caused by strikes called by the United Automobile Workers Union in General Motors plants threatened to spread further today, with 30,000 men already idle in 12 G. M. plants in five states and an estimated 20-000 others out of work in factories which supply G. M. with parts and materials.

Homer Martin, president of the U.
A. W., warned he would call a general strike in G. M.—the world's largest automobile maker—if basis for an agreement is not forthcoming soon. G. M. officials, in effect, warned the jobs of 135,000 men in its plants were threatened by the strikes. It was estimated that an almost equal number face loss of work in industries which supply
G. M.

Attempts to open peace negotiations reached a new impasse New Year's Day. William S. Knudson, executive vice-president of G. M., said in reply to a letter from Martin that the company insisted the union should deal directly with managers

Terrific Blast Rips Gasoline

Lake Michigan

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Jan. 2.— Five persons were missing and believed dead today after a terrific gasoline explosion destroyed the 100-foot Beaver Island mail boat, Merold II, while it was engaged in gasoline salvaging operations 10 miles off Bravort in Lake Michigan.

Coast guardsmen and volunteer ships were combing the area today but as they failed to find any traces of the crew, the five members were believed killed in the blast. They were:

Captain L. L. Hill, 79, one-time millionaire Kenosha, Wis., ship-owner.
Leon A. Hill, 53, the captain's son.
Everett Cole, 53, manager and part owner of the Beaver Island Transit Company, owner of the ship.

Ray Cole, 29, his brother.

More Spanish Merchantmen May Be Seized

German Navy Threatens
Blockade Of Spain
Against Loyalist
Ships

FURTHER REPRISALS AIM OF GERMANY

Action Taken As Result Of Seizure Of Cargo Of German Steamer Palos

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—Seizure of more Spanish merchantmen was threatened and a practical blockade of Spain against Loyalist ships was established today by the sleek pocket battleships and fast cruisers of the new German navy.

With one Loyalist freighter shelled and another captured by the Germans, a majority of high German officials agreed today that the Reich's navy will rule Spanish waters until the civil war is ended, and there will be further reprisals
unless the cargo of the German Steamer
Palos is released.

Warning Given
Seizure of the 1900-ton freighter Aragon off Southern Spain, by the pocket battleships Graf Spee, and a gun attack on the freighter Soton in the Bay of Biscay by the 6000-ton cruiser Koenigsberg, are examples, high sources said, of what will happen every time the Spanish Loyalists try to interfere with German shipping.

If necessary, according to one reliable source, further German naval reinforcements will be sent south to help patrol Spanish waters. It was made clear, however, that foreign ships will not be affected by any blockade of Spanish ports.

Shelling of the Soton was bared for the first time today in an official communiqué saying:
"The cruiser Koenigsberg, in the course of measures taken on account of the unlawful procedure on Spanish warships against German steamers, asked the Spanish Steamer Soton to leave to us on Jan. 1."

"Since the steamer did not obey the order to halt, the Koenigsberg first fired two blank shots, and, when the steamer still refused to heed the warning, several actual shells were dropped in the vicinity of the steamer."

"In attempting to escape, the Soton ran aground near the port of Santana, and it was abandoned voluntarily by its crew, which was taken ashore in Spanish fishing vessels."
The Koenigsberg continued its course. No member of the crew of the Soton is aboard the Koenigsberg.

The latter statement was in contradiction of French reports that 33 members of the crew had been taken prisoner.

Authorities stressed that the Soton was at fault, under international practices, for not stopping when a shot was fired across her bow. On the other hand, Spanish sources claimed the Soton was within Spanish territorial waters when the clash occurred.

Arrest Driver After Accident

Following a motor vehicle wreck in Walnut street at 8:50 p. m. January 1, Wilbur McConahy was arrested on a charge of suspicion by Officers H. E. Richards, taken to the police station and found by a doctor to have been driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, according to police records.

Police reports said James Hartland was driving a new car and it was struck by the truck driven by McConahy. The car was damaged badly.

James Zramba who was riding with McConahy received a laceration of the face, was treated at the Jameson Memorial hospital, then arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

mobilized here to enforce Governor Dave Sholtz' order out-rigger Mayor Elizabeth Armstrong and other city officials from office, were demobilized today by Adj. Gen. Vivian Collins.

Because of a temporary injuncpointed by Gov. Sholtz to succeed Mrs. Armstrong and her official family, from taking office, Gen.

Collins declared, "There is nothing we can do before Monday," and ordered the troops home.

Meanwhile, the city hall remained an armed fortress with sub-machine and riot guns peeping from the windows.

Mrs. Armstrong declared she would keep the armed force of 30 policemen and 50 special officers on guard at the city hall "as long as necessary."

The injunction handed down last night by Circuit Judge Herbert

Gen. Collins to refrain from inter-

Pope's Condition Reported Worse

More Acute Pain Is Wracking His Weakened System, Says Report

By FRANK GERVASI
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 2.—With his paralysis apparently spreading and more acute pains wracking his weakened system, Pope Pius XI took a turn for the worse today.

His condition necessitated two hurried morning visits by Dr. Amanti Milani, his personal physician, and the use of leeches in an effort to lower his blood pressure.

Dr. Milani found when he called as usual at 8:30 a. m. that the pon-tiff had spent a restless and disturbed night. Some time after that the pain in his left leg grew suddenly more acute and the physician was hastily called back, arriving at 11:45 a. m.

Immediately afterward Swiss guards closed the approaches to the principal staircases leading to the Pope's private apartments. There were some fears another blood clot may have formed, although no immediate crisis was expected.

Rivers Rise As Result Of Rain Over District

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—Spurred on by light but widespread rains, Pittsburgh's rivers were slowly rising today but weather bureau authorities reported there was little chance of the waters reaching flood stage.

After a gradual recession from yesterday's high of 19.2, the rivers renewed an upward trend about 9 o'clock this morning. Weatherman
S. J. Brotzman reported the upper Allegheny was falling and the Monongahela river from Charleroi down was rising slowly.

A heavy downpour might cause the rivers to reach the 25 foot flood stage, Brotzman said.

FEAR GROWING CASE MAY NOT BE SOLVED

Money Will Not Be Paid
Unless Boy Is Produced

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service Staff

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 2.—The government's famous sluths, department of justice agents, known as G-men, displayed such brisk activity here today that again a "break" was predicted in sensational kidnapping of Charles Mattson, 10-year-old son of a society surgeon, now missing for six days.

As more and more G-men poured into Tacoma, bringing their total to between 45 and 50, it was reported that their chief, J. Edgar Hoover, would fly from Washington to take personal charge of the efforts to recover the boy whose father, Dr. William W. Mattson, is ready to pay the $28,000 ransom demanded, but cannot contact the ab-ductor.

Directing the search now are two G-men heartily feared in the half world of crime, Harold Nathan, assistant to Hoover, and Earl J. Connelly, field general, who are driving their little army of investigators day and night assisted by scores of police and highway patrolmen.

Two new developments marked the strange case—the arrest of a suspect and the search of timberland near Olympia, Wash., developments not regarded as very important at this stage of the investigation, but part of the systematic combining of every possibility.

The suspect, a 33-year-old seaman held merely "for investigation," was picked up by police on the street here while trying to peddle a ring he says he bought in the Orient.

He answers the general description of the kidnaper, dark, bearded, well built, left handed and dressed in a cap and jacket, but the officers say they think he can establish an alibi for the night the boy was whisked away, and probably will be released in a few hours.

The search of the woods near Olympia followed a report that a man was seen "hustling" a boy along there Monday night 24 hours after the abduction.

Highway patrolmen found ashes of a fire, apparently where the pair camped Sunday night, and empty food tins.

Also, a detective magazine was discovered which bore on one page some written notes in pencil reading: "$8,000 in tens, twenties and fifties, big bills for $10,000."
This was somewhat similar to a demand made in the ransom note left in the Mattson home by the kidnaper as he ran out with the boy, that the money be in certain denominations.

More Light On Note

Auto Convoy Hits Bus In Accident

Mishap Occurs This Morning At Stevenson Bend On The Youngstown Road

Miss Clara Cummings, school teacher of West View, Pa., received a slight cut on one of her hands at 9:25 a. m. today when a P. & O.
bus in which she was a passenger was struck by a motor car convoy at Stevenson bend, Youngstown-New Castle road. Flying glass caused the cut. There were twelve passengers on the bus.

According to Highway Patrolman Cuthbert who investigated the accident, the bus was travelling toward Ohio and the convoy toward New Castle. Coming down the hill the brakes on the convoy broke, according to information secured by the patrolman and the convoy struck the front end of the bus.

Glass was broken and the rear of the bus scraped. One automobile was jarred from the convoy.
alighted on all its wheels and running to the side of the road. The other three automobiles being carried were jarred from place.

Ralph Bidle, Scott, N. Y., drove
the convoy and Lloyd Elliott, Youngstown, drove the bus, according to the highway patrolman.

Call 'Surgeon' For Sick Tower Clock

First Christian Timepiece To Get Expert's Care Within Short Time

They had called for a clock "surgeon" out of Philadelphia for the tower clock at the First Christian church today.

"For a month now, it's been operating rather hit-and-miss, running and then stopping," explained one of the diamond church's men to a reporter at noon, right in the shadow of the high timepiece whose hands would have one believe it was 9.

"We're going to have it fixed soon," said he. "The master clock is alright—the trouble is in the contact machinery somewhere."
So it won't be long probably until the church clock has won back the public's respect and pedestrians again will be lifting their eyes sky-ward again, knowing they'll learn the correct time.

MUST RE-ENACT NEW DEAL

Most Agencies To Expire Soon

Legislation Re-creating Those Held Desirable Will Be Passed By Congress

PRESIDENT STUDIES MEASURES NEEDED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The New Deal, freshly endorsed by the electorate, will have to be re-enacted all over again by the new congress.

A survey today showed that 57 acts, creating emergency agencies of the government, expire by next July 1. The list includes the giant agencies handling relief, public works, housing, home loans and farm loan problems.

See Some Opposition.
President Roosevelt, however, will have little trouble getting his program enacted, due to the record-smashing Democratic majorities in both house and senate, observers said, but there will be some opposition to extending the life of a few of the emergency organizations. This was indicated by Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, who observed:

"Now that recovery is at hand, we ought to do away with some of our emergency organizations."
The expiration of so many New Deal acts meanwhile will give the president himself a chance to revise his recovery program. He may decide to abandon some of the emergency organizations. Renewal of some will be opposed by the president's own advisers on Capitol Hill, who seek to reduce governmental costs in hopes of an early balancing of the budget.

Must Reduce Costs.
The senate Byrd committee and the house Buchanan committee are at work studying proposals for reducing governmental costs. Some of their recommendations may include abandonment of New Deal agencies.

The list of threatened agencies includes the RFC, which expires February 1, and the Reconstruction Finance Mortgage company, June 30, the FERA and the FWA both expire early in the year. There is little doubt though that the president will ask an extension for one or both of these agencies since the relief problem is still acute.

Other "death sentences" have been decreed for the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation, the HOLC and the savings and loan division of the Home Loan Bank board. Some agency will have to be continued to handle their outstanding loans even if future loans are prohibited.

The FHA will die in the next few months unless "repealed." Others are the soil conservation service, the CCC, the electric home and farm authority and the Federal Surplus Commodity corporation.

union officials but that G. M. would not consider the union demand for a national collective bargaining conference for the G. M.'s 69 plants in 35 cities in 14 states.

Further, G. M. pointed out "the jobs of more than 135,000 men are imperiled, most of them through no fault of their own. They and their families stand to lose daily more than $1,000,000 in wages from General Motors." Knudson said in effect responsibility rested with the union. Martin, in a reply, said it rested with G. M.

Best available estimates, based on average wages for auto workers, indicated that payrolls of $10,000,000 a week ultimately would be withdrawn from business and trade streams if the labor differences spread.

From Union Front.

The next big development in the situation is expected to come from the union front. Officials from local union units in 10 G. M. cities were scheduled to meet at Flint tomorrow for a conference.

Today, four G. M. plants in Flint, two in Atlanta, two in Kansas City, two in Norwood, O. one in Cleveland and one in Anderson, Ind., were down, eight of them because of strikes and four because of shortage of materials. New stop orders to companies supplying G. M., telling them not to send any more materials at present, have gone out, it was understood today. This is to prevent a pile-up of parts and materials in plants, G. M. said.

Meantime, the union served demands on the Cadillac Motor and Fleetwood Body divisions of G. M. Cadillac officials agreed to meet with union spokesmen on Monday.

tional mayor" to "exhaust every legal and legitimate means available to keep Gov. Sholtz and his cohorts from taking charge and control of the city for the purpose of exploiting it."

Tense Situation Eased
Removal of the troops relieved the tense situation and the danger of violence.

Gov. Sholtz ordered the ouster on charges of excessive expenditure of charges of excessive expenditure of municipal funds, "malfeasance in office, neglect of duty and incompetence."

Yesterday Mrs. Armstrong ordered the removal from the building of municipal papers, records and files and supervised the removal under guard of 30 armed policemen and special police.

She defied the governor's ouster move, declaring:

"I propose to stay here until the guard puts me out."

There will be no gunfire, the militant woman mayor said, declaring:

"We are going to do nothing illegal. My removal was strictly illegal and I am still mayor."

Crowds Cheer
Crowds of citizens milled around the city hall last night, the majority cheering the defiant stand taken by Mrs. Armstrong. She succeeded her husband as mayor December 10, reportedly to forestall his removal by the governor. He and their son, Howard, are under indictment for alleged shortages in city funds reported to exceed $100,000.

Mrs. Armstrong and five other city officials arrested by Gov. Sholtz removal order, city commissioners Lytle C. Ramsey, Ralph W. Richards and Mrs. Eliza Robinson, and city clerk Francis Mills and city manager Milton S. Couch, denied the governor's charges, accusing him of making them political scapegoats.

Under Florida law the governor has authority over county government but not over municipalities. In 1933, however, the legislature gave Gov. Sholtz specific authority to supervise the municipal affairs of Daytona Beach, his home for more than 20 years before he was elected governor.

FATHER OF BOY SEEKS CHANCE TO PAY FOR RELEASE

had seen it. They declared it instructed Dr. Mattson to pay no attention to letters not printed in the same ink as the note, an ink of peculiar hue probably made by mixing several colors of ink.

There were also other ways, it was said, to identify a letter from the kidnapper, who signed his ransom note "Tim."

The missing boy's parents still waited, grief stricken. They now showed discouragement for a contact so they might pay over the ransom which is ready and obtain the little prisoner's release.

The want ad in the personal column of a Seattle afternoon newspaper ran again yesterday for the fourth consecutive day, designed to tell the desperate physician is ready to pay.

The ad read:

"Mable—we are ready. Everything in accordance with your desires—Ann."

But there was no move by the kidnappers and fears were grave that the mystery will never be solved, or at least that the boy may never be returned unharmed.

The two men most prominently mentioned as intermediaries, Paul H. Seva and Lt. Col. Gus B. Appleman, declared absolutely no ransom has been paid, setting at rest rumors that the money has been turned over.

"This will be no Lindbergh case," said Appleman. "No money will be paid unless that boy is produced alive."

Seek Suspect

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 2.—Law enforcement agencies engaged in trying to solve the mystery kidnapping of ten-year-old Charles Mattson today suddenly put out an order to pick up a musician, described as a "known narcotic addict."

The officers said they wished to "question" the musician in the $28,000 ransom abduction of the boy, son of Dr. William W. Mattson, Tacoma society surgeon, now missing for six days.

The musician, who has been a familiar figure around the taverns here and in nearby Seattle, is described as resembling the desperado closely, being the resemblance on the description given officers by Charles's brother and sister who were with him when he was whisked away from the pretentious mansion home last Sunday night.

"There are a couple of other reasons why we would like to pick this fellow up," said one of the officers working on the case.

"One of them is that he disappeared the day of the kidnapping."

WEEKLY LETTER

The Castleton, Monday, Jan. 4, 1936. 12:15 to 1:30 P. M.

Fellow Rotarian:

Our hat is off to the Social Committee and Tom Boyle. They certainly did a good job in a big way. If there is anyone who did not enjoy themselves, their money will be refunded.

Monday will be a business meeting with all that means. The Dictator will be in charge.

We would call your attention to the Rotarian Magazine and one article in particular, "Rotary in Retrospect." This article is one we might all read with profit. Some of the gems from his article: I never ate a Rotary luncheon by the side of the same man any two weeks in succession and at the end of the first year I believe I could have called the name and designated the business or profession of every man...

...a host of new acquaintances and a surprisingly large number of genuine friends... my point of view was being largely widened because, almost literally, I was rubbing shoulders and exchanging opinions with the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker, to say nothing of lawyer, doctor and college professor... I know any of the right answers today, I must credit the fact very largely to my contacts made through the medium of Rotary.

The Makers-Uppers are: John Nodthardt, to Evanston, and Winnetka, Ill. Clare Book at Orlando, Fla. George Lyon and Ed Seavy at Beaver Falls.

Happy New Year to all. May the new year contain greater success to all.

CARL E. PAISLEY, Sec'y.

ARREST IS MADE FOR MURDER HERE THIRTY YEARS AGO

Dominick Caio for the murder of Romeo, who was shot to death. Esposito, meanwhile, had fled, and Caio was subsequently exonerated by Romeo on his death bed.

"From the records of the case, it appears that the slain man many years ago was a member of the Carabinieri (police) in Italy and in his official capacity shot and killed Carmillo Esposito, a cousin of Rocco.

Followed To America

"Rocco, it was brought out at the time of his indictment, followed Romeo to America and carried out an oath to avenge his cousin's death.

"In February, of 1936, I received a 'tip' from a strictly confidential source as to Esposito's whereabouts. New Castle authorities had that same information ten years ago.

"I detailed several of my own department's investigators to the case. And three weeks ago Frank Costa, one of my men, informed me he had located Esposito. The arrest was made on New Year's Day.

"Esposito, Costa has informed me, is now in jail in Haileyburg, Ontario, about 600 miles from Toronto. Today an extradition hearing will be held there with Costa testifying for Pennsylvania.

"We do not anticipate any difficulty in bringing this man back for punishment. Should we be successful in this, Esposito will probably be taken to Harrisburg and handed over to Lawrence county authorities and as quickly as possible brought to trial. There will be no need to re-indict him."

Esposito who faces the electric chair if convicted is now 56, Margiotti said.

Pleads Innocence

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Jan. 2.—Rocco Esposito today expressed no fear of returning to Pennsylvania to answer charges of killing Francesco Romeo, of New Castle, Pa., 30 years ago.

"I haven't anything to fear so why should I fight against being taken back," said Esposito who pleaded he is innocent of the charge.

The prisoner was picked up here under the name of Rocco Strange as he was celebrating New Year's eve and his daughter's birthday with his family. Although authorities said Esposito indicated he was understood members of his family would fight his removal to Pennsylvania.

Rev. C. H. Hauger, pastor of the Croton M. E. church, officiated at the ceremony in the parsonage, and the young couple was attended by Miss Olive Soper, a close friend of the bride, and Richard Blaine, the bride's brother.

The bride wore a new shade of deep blue crushed velvet with matching accessories, and her attendant was attired in a flowered silk print.

A wedding supper was served in the bride's home at which covers were arranged for 14 guests. A seven tiered wedding cake was used for the centerpiece with tall candles on either side to blend with pink and white tones.

Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Bales departed for their newly furnished apartment at 711 Cleveland avenue. The bride has been connected with the Strouss-Hirschberg company in this city, and the groom is affiliated with the Radiator company as inspector.

CALLES ON DICTATORS

GENERAL PLUTARCO ELIAS CALLES, former President of Mexico and the one-time "strong man" of that country, is now an exile in the tranquil and beautiful countryside about San Diego, California, and from this position of safety he talks freely and authoritatively on the subject of dictators.

What he has to say is made important by the circumstance that General Calles used to be a dictator himself. For many years he exerted power directly and then he decided to use others as the instruments through which to accomplish his purposes. This was a fatal mistake. For a time he found his hand-picked presidents obedient to his will, but then came one who decided to run the show himself. To clear the way for the achievement of this end he packed the aging "strong man" into an airplane and dropped him over the United States border.

Now General Calles is convinced through study, observation and personal experience that the dictator has at best only a precarious hold on power. Dictatorships can be maintained, he says, only by force and violence. They can never succeed in countries that have known liberty. When human rights and prerogatives are threatened, violent convulsions result.

The conclusions of General Calles seem logical and they serve to inspire speculation along interesting and vital lines. The dominant political forces on the continent of Europe today are dictators who, as Calles has indicated, have maintained their positions by force and violence. How long can they continue to do so? And what will happen when their iron rule shows the first sign of weakening? New pages of history will be written, quite probably in blood.

A LOSING GAME

A nation which had been shocked and alarmed by the frequency of kidnappings finally was reassured by the deadly effectiveness with which the Federal Bureau of Investigation, often in co-operation with local and state police, solved these crimes and dealt with the criminals. With all of the kidnappers of recent years, except one, either executed or imprisoned, there was basis for the hope that this heartless and vicious crime would not in the future be known in the criminal annals of the country. Unhappily, that hope is not to be fulfilled.

The kidnapping of ten-year-old Charles Matson, of Tacoma, Washington, does not differ insofar as heartless cruelty is concerned from the many similar crimes that have preceded it. There is some measure of comfort, however, in the knowledge that these criminals invariably fail. Ultimately, there is reason to believe, this boy will be returned to his family and the kidnaper who carried him away will be compelled to face stern justice.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Congress meets on January 5 and on the next day, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, President Roosevelt will read his message "On the State of the Union" at a joint session of the Senate and the House of Representatives. This will be the first time that a newly elected president has appeared before congress before he has been inaugurated. The inauguration will be on January 20.

This taking of time by the forelock, as it were, is a mere technicality brought about by the Norris "lame-duck" amendment, and will not worry any one much. Just what will happen four years from now, or whenever the incumbent and the president-elect are not identical persons, is a problem which doubtless will take care of itself. Perhaps both the outgoing president and the incoming president will deliver messages.

The president's message on January 6 will be broadcast. This practice has considerably changed the tenor and character of presidential messages. Mr. Roosevelt has realized that, on these occasions, he has to speak to the nation as well as to the congress, and has pitched his speech accordingly. If, this January, he should get his inaugural address mixed up with his message, probably few would notice the difference.

NORMAL HONESTY

A study of 1,001 cases of embezzlement among mercantile employees has convinced the president of the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company of Baltimore that the average person who dips into his employer's till for the first time has been, up to then, normally honest. That is, he does not think that he is really stealing, but that he is borrowing something which he intends to pay back. Writing in the Weekly Underwriter this authority says:

"At the same time there is in the character of the typical embezzler a weakness which prevents him from standing up under temptation and difficulties which others seem successful in overcoming. The table of causes shows that for the most part they are merely those things which go to make up the ordinary hazards of living. However charitably you view them, these people failed while contending with the ordinary hazards of life such as all have to face to a greater or less degree."

This brings up the interesting question of how honest normal honesty is. If normal honesty means you can be a little dishonest when you think you can get away with it, there is urgent need for a revision of terminology. That seems to be the way your average embezzler feels about his first "borrowing" without permission. That he will go on to a second and to others until finally he is undone apparently does not enter into his expectations.

But that is not honesty, normal or abnormal. It represents nothing more than infantile faith in the philosophy of Not Getting Caught. Presumably nobody steals until he is tempted to steal; presumably also not many persons would steal if they felt reasonably sure of discovery and punishment. No doubt there are instances when the immediate value of the thing to be taken is considered great enough to outweigh all consequences of discovery and punishment, but these must be relatively few. "Weakness" is scarcely the right term for the flaw in character which causes a trusted employee to fail. "Moral imbecility" would be a better if it were understood that the implied feeble-mindedness did not reach a degree which would absolve the thief from responsibility for his act. There is only one kind of honesty which insures immunity from temptation to steal and that is honest honesty.

You can't deserve the public's respect merely by breaking records. Look at the weather.

There was no opportunity in Rockefeller's time, either, for those who spent all they made.

FAMILY UNITY STRESSED

As one looks at the average church and Sunday school program, one sees little or no apparent effort to encourage and promote the family as an institution, except incidentally. And yet, organized religion would appear to depend upon the family for its very existence. Besides, the Sunday school and church service would seem good avenues through which to foster wholesome family life.

Since many preachers, teachers, wives, Sunday school superintendents and teachers read this column, and some adult classes discuss a few of my articles—judging from the letters I receive—I take the liberty here to ask you religious leaders to question yourselves on what your program is doing to contribute to happier home and family living, and to furtherance of the ideal of wholesome family life.

How many sermons in a year have touched or centered on marriage, preparation for marriage and Christian virtues of unselfishness essential to its success; on the Christian virtues involved in living together in a family happily—of each respecting the personality of every other member of the family? As I have said before, about the hardest place for once to be a Christian is with one's own loved ones right at home.

Study to Understand Children
In some Sunday schools there are classes for families which aim to study how to understand their children better, guide them more skillfully in right conduct, and earn their honest affection and esteem. And a good excuse for such classes is to win the children to the church. Those children whose parents earn their genuine affection are on that account, very likely to embrace their parents' ideals, philosophy of life, religion—to choose at least to give it a trial.

An occasional class of youths in Sunday school is taught by a skillful teacher in the discussion of wholesome family life and wholesome boy-girl relationship outside the family. Also, some of them have opportunity to get together socially for good times under safe environment, rather than to seek their social outlet in the roadhouse or public dance hall. Why has the church been so negligent of social opportunities for young folk?

Those leaders interested in these problems might find some suggestions for study and discussion in "Living Together in the Family," by Lemo Dennis, or in my book, "The Modern Family."

FATHER CAN'T BLOW THE BUGLE

There's a bugle in the house and everybody can blow it, everybody but father.

Mother can blow it. Both the daughters can blow it. And even that small boy—Mr. Three-and-a-Half—the very first time he put it to his lips he blew a mighty blast.

He blew it and the pug got out in the middle of the room and howled his sad resentment at the raucous invasion of his peace. But father can't do it...and you can't say he hasn't tried. He's puffed his cheeks and pursed his lips and struggled and struggled to get some loud clarion call out of that stubborn horn.

All to no avail; all ends in red-faced humiliation. Once in a while he gets a feeble peep or two out of the silly thing...But that's all. No blasts no bugle, calls nothing loud enough to pain the puppy.

The family thinks it's funny. They laugh at father when he tries...They tell him very carefully just how to hold his lips, just how to blow, and they howl when he fails.

Even Mr. Three-and-a-Half feels superior. He picks up that horn, says, "Look, daddy, and blows that horn that's more than half as tall as he, shocks the dog and disturbs the neighborhood and inflates his own importance—and grins at his father. The Peanut!

But father can't blow the bugle—and perhaps it's just as well he can't.

If he could blow it, it wouldn't be so much fun for the others. They wouldn't feel superior, they wouldn't get so much kick out of it if everybody could do it.

And as long as somebody ought to be the goat, it might as well be father...But if it was his OWN horn, he could blow it. He's never had any difficulty doing that.

SHORT WORK

The shrewd inquest on record to my knowledge was space it takes to tell it. Mr. A. was a station agent on a certain railroad. He was a bachelor, perhaps 50, and of considerable avoirdupois. He was said to be cranky, and that he sometimes had spat with meddlesome boys, who would come about the station of evenings to annoy the bachelor, who kept his sleeping apartments in one corner of the depot.

On the evening preceding his death, it was recalled the next morning, after finding him dead in his bed, that he ate a hearty supper. It was also recalled by the villagers that he sometimes complained of heart trouble and those things were freely discussed; but, owing to the fact that it was known that he sometimes had trouble with his (Continued On Page Seven)

What will be the outstanding features of 1937 in the United States? We should guess—the growth of labor organization under John L. Lewis, and the solidification of farm movements.

Unionization of complete industries at a time is going forward at a more rapid pace than the public realizes. Even who try to keep track of it are surprised.

Large corporations threaten to transfer work in "affected areas" to other plants—and do. But it is not long until the "unaffected areas" also are "affected."

The battle of these new John L. Lewis' unions is aimed chiefly at the three major industries in the United States: (1) Automobile; (2) tire; (3) steel.

ONE SIDE
Workers contend that continued mechanization and speedups not only deprive many men of work, but that those who do work are good for a mere 10 years.

These same workers charge that the same forward intimidation has changed to a more subtle type.

They object, also, to "excessive" bonuses at the "top."

OTHER SIDE
On the other hand, managements contend that competition is causing more and more speedup to bring prices down, that mechanization in the end will widen markets and bring more employment.

ECONOMIC CONCERN
Economists, assuming a neutral attitude, see an increasing danger to stability.

Efforts to find markets in order to provide an increasing production spiral may bring on economic wars. Such wars are a prelude to real wars.

Many solutions have been offered. They range all the way from a rigid state capitalism to a socialistic co-operative state.

America usually chooses a middle ground.

WELL-BEING
American well-being, in 1937, as at other times, may be governed by European well-being.

A complete financial collapse in Germany or in Italy may have world repercussions.

Present indications, 1937 will be a critical year financially for those two nations.

The evil results of the ill-advised Versailles treaty still are accruing. There probably would be no crisis in Spain, or in any other part of Europe today, if the victor had not taken spoils from the vanquished. The United States took none of those spoils, nor did it approve of the Versailles treaty, but the economic results affect the United States.

DOCTOR'S VERDICT

We sat in the doctor's waiting-room and he nervously drummed the floor.

"It is strange," said he, as he turned to me.

"What happens behind that door?"

"Just yesterday morning a fuss I made.

Because a clerk came late, And the loss of a dollar's worth of trade.

Seemed dreadful to contemplate. "I fancied it mattered much yesterday."

Whether prices went up or down, And how could I manage in front to stay.

Of the other shops of the town."

"And now?" said I. "And now," said he.

"The terrible truth to tell, This is all that is troubling me. Shall I ever again be well?"

Second Payment Made By W.P.A. On School In Wayne

Township Gets Grant Of $6,101.60 In Payments On School Construction

(Special To The News)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 2.—G. Douglas Andrews, State PWA Director, today announced the payment of $6,101.60 to the school district of the township of Wayne, in Lawrence county. This amount constitutes the second of a series of grant payments which are being made by the Public Works administration in the fulfillment of its promise to pay $27,457, or 45 per cent of the total cost of the project which is estimated will amount to approximately $61,016. This brings the total amount already paid by the Public Works administration to $21,355.60.

This project, which is nearing completion, is making possible the construction of a new consolidated elementary school building in Wayne township. This new structure will contain five classrooms and offices and will replace five one-room school buildings which are no longer adequate.

Although this new school building will cost approximately $61,016, the cost to the taxpayers of Wayne township will be only $33,559, or 55 per cent of the total cost of the project, the difference being the portion covered by the Public Works administration grant.

This project is providing over 32,000 man-hours of useful employment both for workers living in Wayne township and for many who are engaged in preparing, fabricating and transporting the materials which are being used in the construction of this needed public school.

Murder Mystery At Chambersburg

Mother And Daughter Burned To Death, Another Daughter Saved, Hint Foul Play

(International News Service)
CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Jan. 2.—Franklin county authorities today tackled what they believed might prove to be their first murder mystery of 1937—the death of a mother and daughter and the injury of another daughter in their blazing home under circumstances strongly hinting of foul play.

The dead were Mrs. Hazel A. Gelwix, 39, a widow, and Helen L. Gelwix, 15, her daughter, burned to charred bones when flames destroyed their bungalow at Marion, near here.

Catherine Gelwix, 20, the other daughter, was rescued from the burning dwelling unharmed by flames but suffering serious injuries. Dr. A. W. Thrush, Franklin county coroner, said Catherine's injuries—a compound skull fracture over the right ear and a two-inch fracture above the right eye—indicated foul play. Hospital attaches said there was no odor of kerosene on Catherine's clothing when she was admitted to their care. Unconscious. Thrush planned an inquest.

Questioned briefly after she had regained her senses, Catherine could give officers little information about the events preceding the fire. The blaze was discovered early yesterday morning.

Jan. 3, 1746—The phenomenon known as electricity was first noted in Leyden, Holland, whence the "Leyden jar" got its name, by Pieter and Cornelius van Musschenbroek. The experiment in which this first great electrical discovery was made, can be conducted by any one.

They coated a thin glass vial inside and out with tinfoil and partly filled it with water. In this a cork pierced by a nail was floated with a nail touching the liquid. The charge produced within the jar was released by connection with a voltaic battery, and the charge conveyed over a copper wire, producing a flash of light.

All know the wonders that have been produced by electricity since that day, but no one knows exactly what electricity is.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

President To Outline Plans

Trend New Deal Will Take In Next Four Years Will Be Given In Inaugural Speech

STEWART GIVES HIS FORECAST

Central Press
Washington Bureau
602 Times-Herald Bldg.
By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A forecast of 1937's legislative trend in Washington will be safer to venture on after the country has listened to President Roosevelt's re-inaugural address Jan. 20.

The general supposition is that his outline of policy on this occasion will be even more comprehensive than his talk at the reassembling of congress.

It will sketch the administration's plans not only for 1937 but for the full four years of its second term in office. And, the administration being now almost all-powderful in Capitol Hill, what it wants it is certain to get, practically in its entirety at least until the seventy-sixth congress convenes a day or two after Jan. 1, 1939. In the event of a super-sensational flop in popular sentiment in the election of 1938, who can say what the seventy-sixth congress' house of representatives will be like? Meantime, most of what President Roosevelt dictates will be acquiesced in by both houses of the lawmakers. There will be a few earlier Democratic recalcitrants among the lawmakers but not enough of them to signify.

"DIGGING IN" NOW

Some guessing, however, is permissible.

The president started in 1935 with an announced program of experimentation.

The New Deal was on the aggressive. It was seeking the capture of positions. It captured a lot of them. In some instances, with supreme court aid, or due to other mischances, the defenders held their ground.

This time it is up to the New Dealers to "consolidate their gains" as military men say, or "mop up" elsewhere.

The sub-commanders of the storm troops (the Moles, the Tugwells and maybe the Hopkins and others), so valuable in the initial assaults, are not temperamentally adapted to the job of "digging in" permanently.

WON BY CONSERVATISM

Accordingly the administration is effecting a readjustment, somewhat in the line of conservatism.

The Moles and Tugwell have been or are being wished out of office.

They are getting good jobs in private employment, but that is an old story—radicals, as they become SUCCESSFUL radicals, always are succeeded by conservatism.

Nevertheless radicalism does dilute conservatism.

The radicals whom the conservatives absorb into their midst produce a radical impression.

It is a commonplace that "big business" is increasingly more moderate in its attitude toward congressional committees, than it used to be—in fact, apologetic.

"BIG BUSINESS" POLITE

In short, the bigger business is, the politer it seems to be getting. Probably this formerly was not the case. In olden days the nation's financial and industrial magnates inclined, from all accounts, to be overbearing and "sassy" with the lawmakers.

As of the present writing they are different.

For example, I have seen the J. P. Morgans on the congressional investigator "pan". A huge concern, they were almost timidly explanatory.

STRATEGY

The truth is that big business evidently realizes that considerable legislation it does not overly like is inevitable and hopes to get a minimum of it by yielding a bit, here and there, as gracefully as possible.

This promises to make coming New Deal lawmaking somewhat less acrimonious than might otherwise be expected.

Indeed, there are a few of the New Deal's would-be innovations which conservatism itself rather takes to. Illustratively, at first the conservatives hated NRA. Still NRA did relax anti-trust regulations, which conservatism previously had hated. It promptly and thankfully began to take advantage of the relaxation. Then the supreme court knocked NRA out, the anti-trust regulations came into effect again and quite a number of concerns are being prosecuted for violating them. They rather wish they had NRA back.

But as to coming legislative prospects, in detail?

See Chapter II, tomorrow, on that subject.

TO PLAY AT CLEVELAND

The girls' and boys' basketball teams of the Transylvanian-Saxon Junior association, youth group of the New Castle Eintracht Singing society, will go to Cleveland tonight to oppose teams representing the junior organization of West Cleveland.

GRANGE SINGERS TO MEET

Singers from the granges of Lawrence county will meet on Monday night at 8 o'clock in Orr's hall, on Grove St.

The discovery of phosphorus preceded by 800 years any effort to obtain light by friction of phosphorus and sulphur.

Auto Fatalities For 1936 Slightly Lower Than In 1935

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The toll of death from automobile accidents this year was only slightly under the fatality record of 1935, commerce statistics disclosed Thursday.

Deaths from highway mishaps in 1931 major cities in the past 52 weeks numbered 9,417 which compares with 9,756 for the same period of last year.

New York City led all cities with 923 traffic fatalities during the year. Last year New York had 1,078 automobile deaths, Chicago with 710 deaths was second, and Los Angeles with 531, third.

The best record of any community among the 131 surveyed, was Cleveland Heights, O., on whose streets only three persons were killed.

This community surpassed Cicero, Ill., and Hoboken, N. J., both Cicero and Hoboken recorded only two deaths in 1935 to share the honor of being the nation's safest community. In 1936, however, Cicero's death record rose to four and Hoboken's to five.

Lawrence County Alumni Of Pitt University Will Aid 150th Anniversary

Alumni of the University of Pittsburgh from Lawrence county will cooperate in celebrating the 150th anniversary of the founding of the university on February 25, John W. Hallock, secretary of the General Alumni association, announces.

Almost 25,000 Pitt alumni in the 56 counties of the state will be attracted through county and district meetings before the February 25 date, Hallock says. Meeting times and places will be announced later.

According to plans announced by Norman MacLeod, alumni representative on the board of trustees and general chairman of the alumni sesquicentennial celebration, an alumni banquet will be held in Hotel Schenley, Pittsburgh, on the evening of February 25 to celebrate the university's anniversary.

Plans are also being made for alumni to participate in the Pitt student celebration, a general assembly in Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh, on the morning of February 25. This event will be combined with the traditional Scholars' Day at which students are honored for achievement in various fields.

Pitt clubs in various towns and county organizations will be under the direction of Dr. B. F. Jenkins, Jeanette, Pa. The reception committee will be directed by Roy C. McKenna, Latrobe.

According to a statement from Pitt University alumni from New Castle, Lawrence county, include Benjamin S. Agnew, Mont. L. Aldy, Dr. George Alpern, Wilbur C. Anderson, John K. Atkinson, Wilbur J. ## D. O. Davies Is Honored By Class

Men's Bible Class Of Congregational Church Honors Teacher Last Evening

At the meeting of the Men's Bible class, of the First Congregational church, which took place last evening, a suitable gift of appreciation was presented to D. O. Davies, who has been teacher of the class for a number of years.

The presentation speech was given by James G. Davis, who spoke in high regard of the long service of Mr. Davies. Similar remarks were made by the pastor, Rev. Rees T. Williams.

AROUND CITY HALL

Within the next several days it is probable that council will make a set-up whereby the city will be able to pay for materials which will be required for projects this spring.

Indications are that city council will award a contract for a new truck for the streets department at Monday's session. Bids were opened and read several council meetings ago.

It is not known exactly when the civil service board will be in a position to present a list of eligible policemen to council for election. The men hired will be given a course in training before they are actually placed on the job.

There are probably 100 tags at the city police station. They are duplicates of cards given to motorists for violation of city ordinances. Letters are sent daily to motorists who do not honor the tags, summoning them to the police station.

Announcement that there was an increase in auto accidents here brings forth the fact that traffic has increased, yet the average was less than four accidents per day in 1936.

Bennett Succeeds Michael F. Tighe

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—B. Frank Bennett, of Granite City, Ill., a "Progressive" steelworker, today took over the reins of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers through which John L. Lewis is seeking to unionize the steel industry.

Bennett succeeded "Grand Old Mike," Michael F. Tighe, the 79-year-old veteran labor leader who is retiring after serving the organization, the oldest chartered steel union in the United States, for 60 years, 38 years as its official. He has been president the past 17 years.

THIS STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA

APOLLO

Do you know that Apollo, in Westmoreland county, was originally founded as Warren?

The town was named Warren for Warren's Sleeping Place, the name of the tract of land upon which it was located.

In 1848, when the town was incorporated as a borough, Dr. Robert McKisson, an editor and poet, suggested "Apollo" in honor of the Greek God.

If a man loves wisely, he is smart; if he loves unwisely, it is the fault of "that awful woman."

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

HYBRIDS AND CROSSES ARE THE NEW CORN VARIETIES

Many new varieties of sweet corn are appearing in the seed catalogues. These new varieties are large hybrids and crosses and differ from the old open pollinated varieties in several respects.

First, the hybrids and crosses are usually more vigorous and less susceptible to certain smut corn diseases. Second, they yield from 200 to 300 dozen more ears per acre. Third, the ears are much more uniform in size, shape and number of rows of grains. Fourth, the crop matures more uniformly than open pollinated varieties.

Golden Cross Bantam or Golden Cross Hybrid is the outstanding new variety. It is a mid season corn that is not excelled in quality, yield or uniformity of ear. Try this variety next year. Marcross, Spancross, and Whipcross are the most largely planted early crosses derived from Golden Early Market, Spanish Gold and Whipples Yellow respectively. Many commercial sweet corn growers who study varieties carefully have shifted to hybrids and crosses but home gardeners have not.

"STRIPPING" IS NOT NECESSARY BUT PAYS

Complete milking or "stripping" of a cow at each milking is not as important as formerly supposed according to recent experiments at the Government Experiment Station at Beltsville.

It was found that leaving a pound or so of milk in the udder does not cause drying off as is commonly believed. Neither does it lower the percentage of butterfat in the milk, affect the normality of the milk, injure the health of the cow or lead to any increase in under troubles, when followed as a continuous practice. Thus the value of the extra milk obtained may be the only reason for complete milking.

The test was run with 14 cows, and was carried on through two lactations using only the first 240 days in each lactation. During the first lactation seven cows were milked completely and seven incompletely. The groups were reversed during the next lactation. It was estimated that the average amount of milk left in the udder at each incomplete milking was 1.2 pounds. At this rate there would be 576 pounds of milk left in the udder during the 480 milkings in 240 days. Not all of this milk was lost, however, for the experiment showed that 270 pounds of the milk left in the udder was recovered in subsequent milkings. This left 306 pounds of milk actually lost during the year as a result of incomplete milking.

A careful check made on the amount of extra time required to completely strip a cow showed it to average 39 seconds a milking or 5.2 hours for the year. This would be at the rate of 59 pounds of milk for each hour of time spent in stripping. At average or usual prices for milk it is still good business practice to carefully strip each cow when milking. The owner will find he is well paid for the time used.

FARM GARDENS HAVE DUTIES TO PERFORM

Farm gardens have a three-fold duty to perform. Of course, they need some help from their owners. If properly planned, planted, and cared for, the gardens should make a substantial contribution to the family living.

In checking up on the garden performance ask these three questions. Did the garden produce a sufficient quantity of vegetables? Did these vegetables represent a wide variety of kinds? Was the supply ample for 12 months?

Any garden which falls short of a perfect score on such a questionnaire probably can be improved upon during the next year. It is not too early to begin planning now for a better garden in 1937, and planning means just that.

A review of some of the records kept this year shows the results obtained by gardeners. The average size of their gardens was 7,500 square feet or about one-sixth of an acre. The total average value of products was $123.76. These were grown at an average cost of $33.81, including seed, fertilizer, and labor. A profit of $89.95 is noted. Fresh vegetables were available from June to November while 267 quarts were canned and 506 pounds stored for winter use from the average garden.

GILTS BETTER THAN SOWS IN RAISING MARKET PIGS

An eight-year breeding experiment recently completed by the United States Department of Agriculture bears out the belief of many swine breeders that gilts are more economical breeding animals than mature sows.

E. Z. Russell of the Bureau of Animal Industry reports that pigs from gilts were raised at less cost per pound of marketable weight than pigs from mature sows. This includes all periods of growth, gestation, suckling, growing, and fattening.

Three groups were tested in the experiment—mature sows, gilts from mature sows, and gilts from gilts. Pigs from the second group were raised to a marketable weight at 47 cents a hundred pounds less than the first group of pigs from the third group at 42 cents a hundred pounds less.

One of the advantages in using gilts for breeding, Russell points out is that if a gilt should prove to be a non breeder the animal still would sell well as a butcher hog.

There was no drop in the production ability of the gilts from gilts, as the records show that at the end of the eighth year their litters averaged 1,420 pounds at 190 days of age, the best record for this group for the entire eight years.

Russell sees only one risk in the use of gilts for the entire breeding herd. If only one board is used it is possible that he may prove to be an inferior breeding animal and the grower would be compelled to use sow pigs sired by him for the next year's crop of pigs. For this reason Russell suggests that it would be best to use only proved sires or to keep a few proved sows for a part of the breeding herd.

Ohioans Offer Stiff Battle

New Castle High "Red Hurricane" Comes From Behind To Win

OPEN SECTION THREE TUESDAY

In one of those thrilling basketball games for which the New Castle High quintet is famous, the "Red Hurricane" came through last night at George Washington Junior High court with a 20 to 18 sizzler over a fast Salem, Ohio High team. The result was in doubt right up until the gun boomed out the end of the battle.

New Castle took a commanding 7 to 3 lead at the end of the first period, but by the time the end of the first half was reached it was 9 to 8 in favor of the Ohioans. Covelli, Carey and Small did the field goal work for the locals, with Covelli and Small also getting fouls. For the invaders from over the line the work of Shears and Slagle kept them in the lead.

Close All The Way
The end of the third period found the two teams still in a do-or-die embrace with New Castle on the long end this time 13 to 12. The action in the final period was fast and furious, the lead changed hands several times, until finally New Castle went ahead and there wasn't any more time for Salem to score. The scoring for the "Canes" was rather evenly divided with Nocera, Covelli and Small each having five points. Slagle and Shears led the Salem team at bat with 13 of the points between them.

In four goal tossing the New Castle team made 8 out of 12, while the Salems made 8 also out of 15. There was a big holiday crowd on hand. It was the biggest crowd of any of the pre-season games.

It was announced that New Castle will open the Section Three race next Tuesday night at New Brighton.

Disappointing Tone
TodayBy LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Finan-

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The stock market rang in the new year today in disappointing fashion, leaders slipping a point and more. Pivotal issues, particularly in motors and steels, slid off easily.

Faced by threat of a general strike, General Motors led the motors downward, slipping 1½ points. Chrysler lost about a point, while lower-priced auto shares were fractionally lower.

Bethlehem Steel eased a point and U. S. Steel slightly more. Youngstown Sheet &amp; Tube and Republic also lost ground.

Chemicals, rubbers and merchandising shares were under moderate pressure.

U. S. Rubber, Union Carbide, DuPont, Lewis, Pullman, Oliver Farm and Libby-Owens-Ford dropped a point or more.

Oils improved under leadership of Standard of Jersey and Texas Corp. Communications were higher, American Telephone gaining a point.

Utilities, coppers and amusements were slightly lower.

Bonds were quiet and mixed. Most commodity markets, including grain and cotton, remained closed for an extended New Year week-end.

My New York
By James Aswell

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—No one has a more profound and sincere admiration for the very great talents of Miss Katherine Cornell than this reporter. If there is a Number One actress on the American stage, she must be it. Yet I think that with Mr. Maxwell Anderson, the playwright, who seems so very tony and loftily postorial to the susceptible Manhattan drama critics and the Hollywood brain-trusters, she is in very bad company.

It is true that her performance in the new Anderson declamation, "The Wingless Victory," almost brings this strange, bitter and not very original play to life in spots. But if Miss Cornell has the time to waste blowing upon purple coals, she could find worthier and more responsive ash in the work of a dozen other dramatists—Arthur Wing, Pirro, Eugene O'Neill, William Butler Yeats, to name a few.

The press reviews of "The Wingless Victory" were almost unanimously ecstatic. Percy Hammond, God rest his noble soul, having departed this life, there was no one to point out on the morning after opening night that the king had no clothes on. Hammond did just that in the case of the other Anderson breast-beating, the one called "Winterset."

But now Anderson has established himself as a "liberal" playwright, an inveterate "against intolerance and bigotry of all kinds." Which means, from all observation I have been able to make a playwright who is extremely intolerant of certain ideas and extremely bigoted in the certainty that his own are correct. Liberals, in this day and age, have the sharpest fangs in Christendom.

But is it extremely fashionable to be one and to approve all writers who so label their work. Young Mr. Richard Watts, Jr., one of the local drama assayers, went to town for Anderson's new opus in his critique and ended with the observation that, at long last, the Broadway theater had "come of age." He did not say what age and I am only sorry he did not proceed to apply the accepted intelligence quotient tests to the play; he might have been surprised.

"The Wingless Victory" involves a family of hard-shelled, church-going, sharp-bargaining New Englanders, and a prodigal son, who blows in from years of romantic seafaring in far places, a $100,000 cargo in the hold of his ship and a brown-skinned cutie, whom he has married, along with her two choicest—lat-sui-lal! children in tow. Mr. Anderson is considerably upset when he reveals that the Salem sewing circle doesn't immediately invite the sea-captain's Celeban missus to join up, despite the fact that the wheeled ex-prodigal makes a conscientious effort to buy the city fathers with loans the R. F. C. would not approve.

Perhaps I'd better interpolate as you frolic and muse that somewhere you have heard the story before, that indeed you have heard it. Mr. Joseph Hergeheimer told it, with restraint, power and images as pretty and a good deal fresher than Mr. Anderson's in a novel written some years ago called "Java Head."

When it turns out that the returned prodigal has stolen his ship—by name, "The Wingless Victory"—and presumably her cargo into the bargain, the cruel Scrooges and Simon Legrees of Salem are intolerant and vindictive enough to murmur of piracy proceedings, although the object of their persecution furnishes them with an alibi which should satisfy any liberal, i. e., the ship was stolen first from the original owners by somebody else.

It all ends, I am told, in an orgy of suicides. The Celeban lady (whom Mr. Anderson, rather snobbishly and class-consciously, I think, makes out a princess in her homeland to imply that she is as good as the white folks) destroys herself and her two tots. I left just before this point to go home and read a sound, sane hunk of Somerset Maugham's "The Letter," remembering as I did so the superlative performance Katherine Cornell gave in that play's leading role.

On Court House Hill

In this column several days ago mention was made of the necessity of making a return to both the county and the state for the four mill tax (for each) on certain personal holdings. Some readers have assumed that because money at interest is to be taxed that this includes savings accounts. It does not include savings accounts.

It does include stocks except Pennsylvania chartered corporations and a certain few other exempted stocks, mortgages, both first and second, articles of agreement, bonds, negotiable paper, money at interest. For example if you have one thousand dollars loaned out you must file a return on it.

The four mill tax for the county is an old tax but was honored more in the breach than in the observance. Few people ever filed a return. The state now takes a four mill tax and keeps a check upon all personal property to be taxed.

The county is now in shape to use the state lists of taxpayers and taxpayers who do not file a return will find that the commissioners have checked them through the state lists.

Poor bonds in the amount of $16,000 were retired today by County Controller Frank M. Hill. In addition, $2812.50 interest was paid on poor bonds and $10912.50 in road bonds. Before the payments were made the poor fund showed a balance of $42,287.69 and the general fund $135,534.51.

The balance in the general fund is a sound one but the poor fund balance will be expended by January 31 or at the latest February 15. A loan will have to be negotiated but it will not be necessary to get it from the banks. It can be transferred from the general fund and repaid when taxes start coming in.

In order to provide an adequate poor fund it has been suggested that one half mill be taken from the general fund tax and put over on the poor fund. This would add about $35,000 to the poor fund.

The check for the gasoline refund from the state, a little over $35,000 has not been received yet but will be in a few days undoubtedly. There is at present about $23,000 balance in this fund in the county treasury but the money is limited as to expenditure. It can be used to repair bridges, repair highways, pay interest on road bonds or pay damages on highways. There is yet the damage on the Edinburg viaduct which must come out of the fund.

At a meeting of the Beaver County Tax Justice League on Wednesday night a resolution was adopted which is meeting with approval here. It calls upon the General Assembly to assess property at ten times the income value of the property and to limit the millage to ten mills. In the case of vacant property a fair idea of the value would be assessed.

To the home owner this would mean something like this. If your home was worth thirty five dollars per month in rent, the assessed value would be placed at $4220. The millage would be ten mills which would mean that your taxes would amount to $42.20 per year for all purposes.

The General Assembly has already passed a constitutional amendment limiting the millage to ten mills. This must pass another session before it can be submitted to the people for vote in 1938.

Municipalities and school boards have protested against this amendment upon the ground that they could not operate with such a millage. However the intent of the sponsors seems to be to have other taxes substituted for the deficiency, and to take a little of the load off the shoulders of the property owner.

Eckert Has Seven Inauguration Seats

Each Congressman Given Seven Seats For Inaugural Ceremony At Washington

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent
New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 2.—Representative Charles R. Eckert of Beaver has been apportioned seven inauguration seats for distribution to constituents for January 20.

Weather permitting, President Roosevelt will take the oath of office on the front steps of the capitol just as in 1933. Construction of seats for the ceremony has already been commenced in the plaza before the capitol, and tickets for the entire supply will be controlled by a joint congressional committee.

The committee has apportioned 10 seats to each senator and seven to each house member.

This means Mr. Eckert will have only seven tickets to distribute in the entire Lawrence-Butler-Beaver district. Some few additional seats may be available through the chairman of the state Democratic committee and the national committee-man and committeewoman.

Officials here report applications for the seats have already exceeded the supply by great numbers and that thousands of persons desiring to see Mr. Roosevelt sworn into office for the second time are going to be disappointed. Of course, seats for the parade from the capitol to the White House can be procured by anyone who has the money to purchase them. These will not be distributed through senate and house members.

While visiting Russia recently, T. Barron of London, ex-president of the National Federation of Building Trade Operatives, met an English bricklayer who had spent five years in the land of the Soviet. "He told me," reported Barron, "that his wages are about $125 a month. On the same job I met his wife—a Russian. She is foreman and earns $250 a month."

The order of the commission as handed down recently, permitted the railroad to employ a train crew member as a watchman at Moravia street and also a train crew member to operate the crossing gates in South Mill street. Owing to heavy traffic and likelihood of accident, 250 persons presented a petition in which council was asked to attempt to reopen the case.

Barron of London, ex-president of the National Federation of Building Trade Operatives, met an English bricklayer who had spent five years in the land of the Soviet.
